[From the London Times, Sept. 24th.]
The Czar and the President.

The dispatch from Prince Gortschakoff to the Russian Minister at Washington, will probably increase the credit of the Imperial diplomacy. It is undoubtedly well timed and well expressed; it is dignified, it has an air of sincerity, and it moreover causes a pleasurable surprise by exhibiting the greatest autocrat in the world as sympathizing with the troubles and moderating the passions of republicans. The full text of the dispatch is now before our readers, and they will perceive that, though it only repeats what clear-sighted Englishmen have said long since, yet the advice is given with an assumption of sincere good will which will possibly have some effect on the policy of the Americans, and even call up a sentiment akin to gratitude. The Emperor takes it for granted that the Americans will not mistake his counsel for officious interference. He speaks as having authority, as being not only clear from any suspicion of rivalry or ill-will, but as one in whom every American must recognize a natural and unchangeable friend. Waiting until the first burst of the storm had passed away, he appears with friendly dignity to calm the fury of contending factions. Listen to me, he says—to the ruler of the Empire, which, under widely different forms, is animated by a spirit closely resembling your own; which has destinies as great, an ambition as boundless, a policy as astute as those which belonged to your own Union. You cannot mistrust me. You know me well; there is an identity in our natures which makes us instinctively understand each other; there is a community of interests, which is the best guarantee for our mutual friendship.

The Russian Court has, no doubt, felt that the sympathy which has so long united it to the Republic of the New World allowed, and even required, some public manifestation at this time. It has felt that such a dispatch as that of Prince Gortschakoff would be taken in good part. The phrases may not mean much; the cautions may prove to be useless, and the confidence may be mere empty compliments; but the world will be reminded by them that for some forty years there had existed a fellow feeling between the two States which embody the two extremes of political organization, but which have had this in common, that they have claimed to themselves peculiarly to be the nations of the future.

These strange allies have undoubtedly some admiration for each other. How for the goodwill, somewhat ostentatiously professed, would stand against the pressure of opposing interests, we cannot know, but it so happens that it is almost impossible for the United States and Russia to quarrel. They have neither territorial questions to settle nor any large intercourse which might raise questions causing irritation. Then they have both a common rivalry with the old countries of western Europe, which they are now forced to look up to, but have hoped ere long to surpass. England, in particular, has been ever present to the minds of these two ambitious peoples. We will not call the feeling animosity, but it was so nothing more than a mere emulation. The Americans, we fully believe, would not have willingly seen this country ruined or impoverished, or even deprived of its proper place in Europe; nor, perhaps, would Russia be glad that France should be supreme in western Europe, or that the best customers of the Russian Empire should receive any great injury. But England has been to both the barbarous Empire and the enlightened Republic a nation overshadowing them by its greatness and restraining them by its moral influence. We have been in the way; we have prevented, or have been thought to prevent, the full development of their respective forms of government, as well as to bar their territorial progress. That Constitutional Monarchy exists on the Russian frontier and on the frontier of the United States, that there are British colonies on the American continent, and that British diplomacy opposes the extension of Russian domain in Asia, has naturally brought together the two great States which are thus held in check by the same steady and powerful nationality.

A Boston editor, alluding to the long nose of Julius Cæsar, the Duke of Wellington, and other dignitaries, says that he recently saw a nose that beats them all. It was thin and straight, and snubbed at the end, and a foot long. In concluding, however, it occurs to him that "it may be as well to state that it belonged to a pair of bellows."

FALL DRESS.—A New York paper says: "Full evening dress is a white cravat." This is still more airy than the Georgia summer costume, which is said to be a shirt collar and a pair of apers.

Incident on the Arkansas.

A traveling correspondent of the St. Louis Herald, writing from Arkansas, relates the following steamboat incident:
"This is a great country for jokes, and we have just had one which is too good to keep."

Early this morning there were added to our company of travelers a pair who looked very like runaways; the gentleman, a tall raw-boned specimen of the "half horse half alligator" class, and the lady a fair match for him. Among the passengers from Napoleon is a solemn looking gentleman, who has all along been taken for a preacher. About nine o'clock last night I was conversing with the "Reverend" individual, when a young man stepped up, and addressing him, remarked, "we're going to have a wedding and would like to get you to officiate." "All right sir," he replied, laughingly, and we stepped into the ladies' cabin, when sure enough the couple stood waiting. There had been "some fine kissing games" and several mock marriages gone through with during the evening, and I supposed this was merely a continuation of the sport, and so thought the "preacher," who I could see had a good deal of humor in him, and was inclined to promote general good feeling and merriment. The couple stood up before him (a good deal more solemn than was necessary in a mock marriage I thought), and the preacher asked the necessary questions, and then proceeded in the usual way, announcing them "husband and wife." There was a good deal of fun afterward, and when it was over I left the cabin—and so did the "preacher," who remarked to me that he liked to see the young folks enjoying themselves, and took a great deal of pleasure in contributing to their fun; but he didn't understand why they should select him to act the preacher. Just then some one called me aside, and the old gentleman stepped into his state-room, which was next to mine. When I returned the door stood open, and the "preacher" stood just inside, with his coat and vest off, and one boot in his hand talking with the gentleman who had played "attendant," and who, as I came up, remarked:

"Well, if that's the case it is a good joke, for they're in good earnest, and have retired to the same state-room."

The old gentleman raised both his hands as he exclaimed:

"Good heavens! you don't tell me so!" and rushing just as he was, boot in hand, to the state-room indicated, commenced an assault upon the door as though he would batter it down, exclaiming at each kick: "Get up, for Heaven's sake, I ain't a preacher!"

There was a bustling in that state-room for a few minutes, which caused considerable excitement among the passengers. The bride insisted that the marriage was all right, and the bridegroom solemnly consented to re-celebrate the rite at the next landing through the medium of a bona fide knot-tie. This satisfied all parties, and the ladies took charge of the bride until they reached the next landing, where the couple were made one in the manner the law directs. You bet this incident furnished a merry topic for the balance of the trip.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Stomach and kidneys.—Between these two organs there exists a close and intimate relation, which is demonstrated by the wasting which occurs in all diseases afflicting the kidneys. The disordered stomach is often the first index of real irregularities. Holloway's remedies used at that juncture would cut short many a serious and fatal attack. They act with wonderful efficacy on every organ of secretion, but especially do they regulate the stomach, liver, and kidneys in restoring their healthy functions, and casting out any obstructions or impurities. It is necessary for the Ointment to be well rubbed over the affected parts twice daily, when it is absorbed, and much augment the purifying and salutary influence of the Pills.

HOARSENESS, &c.—Brown's Bronchial Troches—These cough and voice lozenges, which we advertised a few weeks ago, are superior for relieving hoarseness, to anything that we are acquainted with. We have tried them during the past winter, and in the statement gratuitously, for the benefit of our brethren in the ministry.—Central Christian Herald, Cincinnati.

These Stoves are beautiful in design, and finished in the most perfect manner. They are equally appropriate and have given universal satisfaction to all who have adopted them.

FOR OFFICES AND STORES AS WELL

AS THE PARLOR.

The inventor challenges the world to produce an article by which so much pure warm air can be generated in so small an amount of fuel, requiring but about fifteen pounds of coal to warm an ordinary parlor for twenty-four hours without replenishing, and then leaving fire enough to rekindle without the use of charcoal.

The coal is all used and no cinders made, consequently sifting coal is dispensed with. When this stove is properly managed,

Naturalization of Aliens

After three years' agitation, at last an Act has been passed providing for the Naturalization of Aliens within the Colony of Vancouver Island. We wish our readers to understand particularly that it only naturalizes within the Colony. In other words, if a foreigner be naturalized under "The Alien Act, 1861," he will not be entitled in British Columbia, or other Colonies, or in the United Kingdom, to any privilege not enjoyed by other aliens. In short, an alien naturalized in this Colony will be as much an alien in British Columbia, as he was here before he took the oaths of residence and allegiance. Hence his British subjectship exists only in connection with this Colony. The reason for this is simply that our Legislature is not empowered to naturalize so as to bestow the privileges of a British subject throughout the whole British Empire. An act passed during the reign of Queen Victoria by the Imperial Parliament prevents all Colonies from naturalizing except within their respective jurisdictions. British Colonial naturalization then differs entirely from naturalization in the United States. There an alien once naturalized may claim all the rights and immunities of a citizen in any other State or Territory of the Union as well as in the State or Territory in which he was naturalized. It may be a matter of regret that some general law is not in existence providing for naturalization and granting to the naturalized the same privileges in any part of British North America. The decentralizing colonial policy of England prevents it at present. When, however, the North American Provinces are united under one local government—as they probably will be before many years—such a law will no doubt be enacted; not before.

The main reason why no national system of naturalization has been broached, is entirely due to the widely dissimilar circumstances of the mother country and the colonies, and to the different circumstances of our widely spread Colonial Empire, rendering it impossible to pass a general law which would be satisfactory to all without local amendment or ordinances. For what might suit Australia might not suit the views of self-governed Canada; and what Canada would like might be bad policy in the British West Indies or at the Cape of Good Hope. Each colony is consequently empowered to pass such a naturalization law as suits itself, and is allowed to make subjects out of aliens with the hope of making them permanent residents "within the colony." With this understanding of the question, no alien can make a mistake in what he is about when he is naturalized here. For if in any other colony of Great Britain he would not be a British subject after naturalization here, it ought to follow that in his native country he would still enjoy the privileges of his birth. Alas! that however some arguments could be raised.

In order to be naturalized here under the "Alien Act, 1861," the following provisions must be complied with: 1. Every alien who is not a felon, and who has resided in this Colony three years, or who may hereafter reside here for that period, is eligible to be naturalized. 2. Naturalization here confers all the privileges which a British born subject can enjoy within this Colony, except being nominated or elected a member of the House of Assembly or Council. 3. A naturalized subject can transmit all his privileges to his children. 4. An alien woman by marriage with a British subject becomes a subject like her husband, without three years residence or taking any oath of residence or allegiance. 5. Any alien who has been three years in this Colony, in order to be naturalized, must apply to a Justice of the Peace, and swear that he has lived here three years, and that he has not been a stated resident of a foreign country during that period, and that he intends to reside permanently in the country. 6. When this oath is made, then two or more credible witnesses have to prove before the Justice that the applicant has resided here three years. 7. Then the Justice issues a certificate of naturalization. 8. This certificate is then filed with the Registrar of the Supreme Court. 9. The Registrar then posts up for one month the application in his office, describing name, residence, and occupation of applicant. 10. If no valid objection be made against the naturalization of the applicant within that period, then the Chief Justice, in open Court, administers the oath of allegiance and adjuration, when the alien is made to all intents and purposes a British subject within this Colony, except where perjury has been committed.

Under the above provisions, which are now in force here, any of our alien population can qualify themselves as British subjects. No Justice of the Peace can refuse to administer the oath of residence if application were made to day; and as the time for the registration of voters is near at hand, we would advise all who contemplate becoming British subjects to qualify themselves without a day's delay. Under the Amended Registration of Voters' Act, 1861, the Sheriff is bound to issue, on the first of January, a call to the electors to send in their claims to vote. The lists will be closed within fourteen days afterwards—on or about January 14th. Consequently there is only seven weeks in which to take the oaths of residence, file the certificate for a month with the Registrar, and finally take the oath of allegiance before the Chief Justice. If advantage be not taken of the law at once, the privilege of voting next year will be as limited as it is now, and as a general election will, in all probability, occur next year, as will the election for a Town Council and Mayor, we would recommend all our alien population who have a stake in the country, a voter's qualification, to take the oath of residence within the next seven days, or else they will be excluded from registering their votes till 1863.

RETURN OF ELECTION WRITS.

The writs for election in Victoria District were returned, from which it appeared that Joseph W. Trutch had been elected in room of H. P. P. Crease, Esq., and Jas Trimble, in room of Alfred Waddington, Esq.

Neither of the newly-elected members were present to be sworn in.

GAS COMPANY.
Mr. Tolmie, from the committee on the Victoria Gas Company, reported in favor of granting an extension of time for six months.

Mr. Burnaby introduced a bill, to provide for a six months' extension of the time of the Gas Company, which passed to a second reading.

THE JURY BILL.

Mr. Ring asked that the second reading of this bill be postponed till the two members recently elected to represent Victoria District take their seats. Such was the intention, he had no doubt, of the House when the second reading was postponed at a previous sitting.

Mr. Cary objected to the postponement, because the session was drawing to a close, and because there was a much fuller House to-day than there was any likelihood of being again for some time. It was not at all possible to pass the bill at this session; but he thought that it could be got through to a Committee of the Whole, there would be a saving of time at the next session. The area from which to select jurors might be extended to householders; but the reduction in the number of jurors he was more than ever in favor of since he had seen the large number of persons who were compelled to dance attendance on the Court of Assizes, which had just completed its labors, to the serious injury of their business. In county courts in England a reduction in the number of jurors had lately been made. He hoped that the bill would pass a second reading so that it might at least go before a Committee of the Whole at the next session of the House.

Mr. King, in rising to oppose the measure, made that the second reading take place six months hence. The honorable member then reviewed and criticized the bill at considerable length, taking the ground that its passage would sweep away the great fundamental laws resulting from the continued labors of the entire bar of England for centuries past, and interfere with the rights and privileges of citizens. The reduction in the number of jurors lessened a man's chance of escape, no matter how innocent, and increased the power of a submissive right by the difference of eight to twelve. In common with Mr. Franklin, he was opposed to a bill of eighteen years sitting as a juror, when he was not considered competent to exercise his right of franchise. The jury de medietate lingue was what foreigners were entitled to claim. In all criminal cases where foreigners are on trial they should be permitted to call a jury of half foreigners, to whom naturally they would confide their interests; and the depriving them of the right would abate their confidence in the administration of the justice of the country. As to the clause regulating to challenge, it was vague and indefinite who was to decide as to the right of challenging. If the prosecution first challenged, and challenged but one, was the prisoner only to have one challenge? This interpretation would consist with the language of the proposed reduction. The honorable member had based his arguments in support of this bill upon the alleged inconvenience which jurors suffered during the Assizes, by being taken away from their business; but he (Mr. King) strongly urged that the inconvenience complained of was a necessary tax which every loyal man ought gladly pay, and in return for this sacrifice he has his own property, character, liberty, and it may be, secured against vexatious suits and malicious prosecutions.

Mr. Franklin seconded the motion for a postponement of the second reading for six months. If it could not be passed this session what was the use of wasting time to consider it, when there were other matters that required attention? It was desirable that in this far off land, that we preserve as nearly as possible the old English forms of law. He would be glad, at some future time, to see a bill suited to the wants of the Colony introduced; but was opposed to any measure like the present one.

Mr. Burnaby seconded the second reading of the bill, not because he agreed with it entirely, but for the reason that he thought some change in the jury system desirable. Whatever appeared in the bill obnoxious, might very easily be altered in Committee.

Mr. Tolmie thought the reasons advanced by the promoter of the bill for sending it to Committee were good. The number composing a jury was not so important as that its members were honest and intelligent.

Mr. Cary replied to Mr. Ring at some length, and Mr. McDonald, although not agreeing with all that appeared in the bill, was willing to go into committee with the hope that action thereon would result beneficially to the Colony.

The bill then passed a second reading, by the following vote: Ayes, Gordon, Cary, McDonald, Burnaby, Ring, Tolmie; Noes, King, Franklin.

VICTORIA LIGHT.
Mr. Franklin's motion that the House go into Committee of the Whole to consider the project of erecting a light on McLaughlin's Point, at the entrance of Victoria harbor, was passed. The honorable member stated that he would pledge himself that the whole cost of maintaining the light during the winter months would not exceed £25 per month. Adjourned till Friday, 22d, at 3 P. M.

THE ELECTION FOR VICTORIA DISTRICT.—Francis, the colored man who received eleven votes for member of Assembly, at the recent election in this District, has determined to contest the return of the Sheriff, on the ground that Mr. Trutch, not having complied with the written demand made on him on the day of election, to show his qualification, all the votes polled for him are illegal; and Francis, being the third candidate on the poll, claims that he is legally entitled to the seat. He has retained Mr. McCreight and Mr. Dennes.

DEFERRED.—The sentences of W. Gidney and John A. Hughes, convicted of larceny in the Court of Assizes, were yesterday deferred until to-day, at 11 o'clock, in consequence of the illness of Mr. Ring, who has moved for an arrest of judgment in Gidney's case.

LYCEUM.—A company of Ethiopian seronians will give a concert this evening at the Lyceum. They are said to be good hands at the business, and will no doubt create some fine fro.

SALE OF TANGLE-LEG.—The Police authorities yesterday disposed of, at private sale, all the tangle-leg which has been seized from Indian whisky sellers and confiscated during the past two years, amounting to several hundred gallons—sufficient to poison all the Indians on the coast and half the white people of Victoria besides. We understand that inasmuch as the authorities have not taken out a liquor license, a complaint will be made against them to-day for selling tangle-leg without a license by some individual in the same business who is jealous of the thriving trade driven yesterday at the barracks.

FROM NANAIMO.—The steamer Emily Harris arrived from Nanaimo, with a cargo of coal to order, at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. She made the run down in fourteen hours, and brought four passengers. The bark D. M. Hall, with a cargo of coal for San Francisco, sailed on Wednesday morning. The hero and heroine of the late elopement case at that quiet little village, having been spliced here, returned by the Emily Harris, on her upward trip, and were received with nine hearty cheers by the assembled populace. We opine that runaway matches will be in fashion at that burgh henceforth.

POLICE AT THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.—Yesterday Mr. Smith, Acting Superintendent of the Police, with one of his aids, was in attendance at the House of Assembly, in consequence of a rumor that an attempt at a disturbance would be made if Mr. Trutch ventured to take his seat. Mr. T. not being in town, however, there was no occasion for a demonstration, and only one spectator, who passed the time in eagerly devouring the crumbs of wisdom which now and then fell from the lips of honorable members, appeared in the gallery.

FAST RIDING.—James McDonald, an expoliceman, arrested for fast riding and drunkenness, was yesterday before Mr. Pemberton. The officer who made the arrest testified that the accused, by his furious riding, not only endangered the lives of citizens generally, but also placed his own life in jeopardy. The prisoner remarked that a "man who had ridden in the grand charge at Balaklava ought to be able to be the best judge of such matters." He was fined 5s.

PETITION FOR "DICK."—This document is at Hibben & Carswell's for signatures. No citizen having a spark of humanity in his composition should neglect to put his name down in favor of a commutation of this sentence of death pronounced against the unfortunate man. If a sufficient number of names are procured we have not the least doubt but that His Excellency will grant the prayer without an instant's hesitation.

BADLY SCALDED.—A boy aged two years, son of Mr. Amburger, fruiterer, on Yates street, was badly scalded yesterday. His mother was called from the room for a moment, and left a tea kettle of boiling water upon the floor, which the little fellow, while playing about, overturned and received a portion of the contents on his left side. It is thought he will recover.

GUNBOAT "GRAPPLER."—The gunboat Grappler yesterday morning discharged a quantity of articles from British Columbia, intended for the World's Fair, on the Hudson Bay Company's Wharf, and afterwards attempted to leave for San Juan Island; but on proceeding outside and finding a heavy gale prevailing, she returned and anchored off Laurel Point.

DISCHARGED.—Wm. Harris, arrested three months ago, while loafing about Portuguese Joe's house, on suspicion of burglary, and sent to the Court of Assizes, where no bill was found against him, was yesterday liberated by the Police Magistrate on entering into his own recognizances to be of good behavior for six months.

NEW BOOKS AND STATIONERY.—Messrs. Hibben & Carswell have lately received, ex late arrivals, some very important additions to their stock of books and stationery, and have also some very fine articles suitable for the approaching holidays.

THE SQUAW BEATING.—John McDonald, arrested for beating a squaw in a most inhuman manner, on last Sunday evening, having paid the physician's bill, and also compensated the woman for the injuries received, was liberated yesterday on the payment of £5 fine.

Wm. Taylor was arrested last night for knocking down a Mr. Anderson. The accused was bailed out to appear this morning in the Police Court.

The second anniversary dinner of the St. Andrew's Society will be held on the 2d proximo.

The steamer Otter, with freight and passengers for Fraser River, left her wharf at 12 o'clock on Wednesday night.

The steamer Emily Harris will leave for Nanaimo at 8 o'clock this morning.
